Helping you take your banking to new heights.

When it comes to business banking, Ben Hangge is the commercial banker you need in your corner. With 20 years in the banking industry, Ben has a deep understanding of commercial financing, financial analysis, and risk management.

Ben attended college at Bethel University, receiving a Bachelor's Degree in Economics, Finance and Marketing. He brought the skills he acquired when he began his commercial banking career as a Credit Analyst where he learned the behind the scenes process of commercial lending. Ben's drive to learn more helped him grow to a Commercial Banker 10 years ago. As he has grown in his career, he has become a leading expert in Merger and Acquisition (M&A) financing. He enjoys getting to know each business and is a strong advocate for his clients, delivering strategic financial solutions that meet their unique needs contributing to their long-term success.

Ben dedicates his continued growth and success to the mentors that have helped him along the way. He pays it forward by serving as a mentor through Bethel University's BethelBiz mentorship program, offering advice and guidance to the next generation's leaders through his real-life experience. He has been mentoring juniors and seniors for the last several years. He also serves as an active member and volunteer for several other organizations in the community.

Above all, Ben is a family man. When this father of four is not serving his community, you can find him coaching his kids in their various activities.
